ACADEMIC INTEGRITY POLICY
STUDIOSITY, 2020

Studiosity is committed to maintaining the highest levels of academic integrity by creating, using, and sharing information in a manner that is responsible, honourable, and, at all times, ethical.

Studiosity considers the upholding of academic integrity to be the responsibility of all staff within the organisation, as well as all contracted Subject Specialists.

Studiosity takes an educative - not punitive - approach to ensure students, Subject Specialists and staff are provided with the support needed to effectively address any academic integrity issues that may be identified.

Studiosity’s Academic Integrity Policy has been developed with guidance from the following resources:

This policy was developed by the Academic Services team in discussion with the Executive Team and in consultation with Chief Academic Officer Professor Judyth Sachs, and the Studiosity Academic Advisory Board (see page 5).

FOREWORD FROM THE CHIEF ACADEMIC OFFICER

Prof Judyth Sachs, CAO

From my experience Studiosity is a company where vision, values, and outcomes are aligned. We are driven by a commitment to transforming students’ lives and enhancing their life chances by building competence and confidence, through developing core academic and help-seeking skills. The company as a whole and every individual working for it is committed to the sector-wide pursuit of academic excellence founded on the highest standards of integrity.

Studiosity is in a unique position to support both students and our partner institutions in this pursuit, and with the recent and necessary emphasis on, and scrutiny of, academic integrity, we stand ready to provide the highest quality, ethically-sound education support.

For students, the focus is on an educative approach as they strive to develop their skills and understanding of academic standards; for partners, the goal is to provide timely, relevant insights into any elements of student behaviour that might indicate a need for further action at the institution level. Furthermore, Studiosity’s underlying philosophy demands that we demonstrate our unerring commitment to academic integrity through the actions of each and every member of our team, from senior management to our online Subject Specialists.

PROF JUDYTH SACHS
Chief Academic Officer

INTRODUCTION

We have always sought advice and collaboration with the best minds; a drive that parallels our mission of enquiry-based learning support for all students. We continue to take guidance from, and work closely with, those whose passion mirrors our own.

Our Academic Advisory Board was formed to provide advice, to ensure the company maintains the highest standards of academic integrity and rigor for our students and partners, and to deliver feedback on innovations and service development.

STUDIOSITY’S ACADEMIC ADVISORY BOARD

ACADEMIC GOVERNANCE

We have always sought advice and collaboration with the best minds; a drive that parallels our mission of enquiry-based learning support for all students. We continue to take guidance from, and work closely with, those whose passion mirrors our own.

Our Academic Advisory Board was formed to provide advice, to ensure the company maintains the highest standards of academic integrity and rigor for our students and partners, and to deliver feedback on innovations and service development.

Prof Petra Wend - Former Principal and Vice-Chancellor, Queen Margaret University
Geoff Kinkade - Former Principal Consultant Gifted & Talented in the WA Department of Education
Australia’s Tertiary Education Quality and Standards Agency (TEQSA) defines academic integrity as ‘a commitment ... to six fundamental values: honesty, trust, fairness, respect, responsibility, and courage’ (International Centre for Academic Integrity, 2014 AS CITED IN TEQSA). These fundamental values are the basis on which principles and behaviours within the scope of academic integrity are developed.

For the purpose of this document, academic integrity is the moral and ethical code of conduct related to the use, generation and communication of information in an honourable, fair, and responsible manner.
RESPONSIBILITIES

ON-BORDING AND TRAINING STAFF

All Studiosity staff members and contracted Subject Specialists are required to complete training related to Academic Integrity during their induction. Furthermore, they are required to revisit training materials as and when they are amended or updated, and when directed to do so by management.

POLICY MAINTENANCE AND DISSEMINATION

It is the responsibility of the Academic Services and Operations teams to maintain the Academic Integrity Policy and its associated training materials. Furthermore, the Academic Services and Operations teams are responsible for the dissemination of notifications to staff and Subject Specialists relating to policy and training amendments and updates.

OUR SUBJECT SPECIALISTS AND MENTORS

Even the brightest minds in the world can’t deliver a million quality study experiences without well-designed technology and stringent accreditation, review, and mentoring policies.

Our Subject Specialists are highly qualified and demonstrate a strong commitment to the success of the students they interact with. Many are dedicated lifelong learners with a passion for quality education.

Subject Specialists are expected to adhere to all our core policies and are monitored and managed by Mentors to ensure this is always the case.

At the core of Studiosity’s strict Quality Assurance Process are these skilled Mentors who develop ongoing relationships with each of our Subject Specialists, providing timely, constructive criticism to help the online team members develop new skills, as well as being a friendly, consistent point of contact. Specialists also have access to an extensive online library of learning resources that describe in detail our policies and processes so they are able to independently check specific requirements as needed.

POLICY ADHERENCE

Studiosity staff and contracted Subject Specialists have an obligation to understand and uphold academic integrity by acting with honesty, fairness, respect, responsibility, courage, and trust.

Studiosity makes every effort to create an environment that fosters the foundations of academic integrity and allows staff and Subject Specialists to fulfil their obligations by clearly documenting the responsibilities and expectations of staff and Subject Specialists in this Academic Integrity Policy.

It is the responsibility of all staff and contracted Subject Specialists to ensure that they are aware of the contents of the most current version of the Academic Integrity Policy, and that they operate within the confines of the policy at all times.

STRATEGIES FOR ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

REQUIREMENTS OF OUR SUBJECT SPECIALISTS

In all interactions with students, Studiosity aims to deliver educational experiences that are academically sound, honest, and ethical. In order to do so, our Subject Specialists:

Work within the guidelines of our Help, Not Answers policy

Subject Specialists facilitate, through guided questioning, consolidation of current knowledge. Using our Core Skills Approach, Subject Specialists also work to scaffold learning and reduce critical gaps in knowledge.

Focus on encouraging active engagement from students throughout Connect Live sessions

Subject Specialists aim to encourage each student’s active engagement throughout Connect Live sessions to ensure educationally sound outcomes, with students gaining the ability to apply new knowledge learned in the session to similar problems and/or situations in the future.

Focus on providing useful and informative feedback to students in Writing Feedback submissions

Our approach to providing feedback is based around empowering and building capacity within students to enable continual learning and advancement. Accordingly, we require Subject Specialists to facilitate sound learning outcomes for students, and not simply to provide answers to questions or make corrections. The primary role of Writing Feedback Subject Specialists is to provide tools and assistance to students to allow them to improve their own work and develop their own skills to apply to similar questions in the future.

Monitor and respond to student behaviour

Subject Specialists are required to make note of potential plagiarism in students’ work and requests from students for direct answers, solutions to problems, drafting of content, or the exchange of personal information. If such occasions arise:

- Connect Live Subject Specialists will advise the student of the issue, with specific messaging designed to help initiate a discussion of potential plagiarism or to clarify how the Specialist can (and cannot) work with the student.

  > If considered necessary, the Specialist will flag the session as “Academically At Risk” so that the partner institution may follow up if deemed appropriate.

  - Subject Specialists are required to report instances where a student has sought to exchange email addresses as this has implications for both inappropriate sharing of personal information and potential collusion.

  - Writing Feedback Subject Specialists will provide feedback on the significance of plagiarism and the importance of crediting sources in writing. They will also direct students to their educational institutions referencing resources and/or student support services.

  > If potential plagiarism is deemed to be extensive, the submission is cancelled and the student is invited to resubmit their document when it is primarily in their own words. Information is also provided on the importance of referencing and acknowledging sources.

REQUIREMENTS OF ALL STUDIOSITY STAFF

To maintain high levels of academic integrity at an operational level, Studiosity staff will operate within frameworks that are responsible, honourable, and ethical. Through adherence to such strategies, Studiosity staff will:

Handle student interactions with the respect and ethicality that they deserve

Studiosity staff will obtain explicit written permission from students before using their work for any sales, marketing, or demonstrative purposes. In obtaining permissions, students will be fully informed of how their work may be used and all identifying information will be removed.

Maintain transparency of reporting processes

Studiosity staff will ensure that partner institutions and students are aware of Studiosity’s reporting practices including:

- Mandatory reporting in accordance with child protection regulations
- Academically At Risk reporting; and
- Emotionally At Risk reporting.

Transcripts of live sessions and reviewed submissions are made available for review by our educational partners.

Communicate clearly with partner institutions and students

To ensure that Studiosity is doing everything it can to create clear expectations for users of its services, Studiosity staff will provide up to date and accurate messaging to partner institutions and students, amending and updating as and when necessary.

Review, amend, and update core policies and procedures regularly

This includes the Academic Integrity policy. The purpose is to ensure that all policies and procedures continue to reflect best practice across all elements of Studiosity’s activities and encompass current approaches to addressing academic integrity challenges.

Foster a working environment that upholds the highest standards of academic integrity

Studiosity management and staff will, at all times, do what is necessary to foster a workplace culture that is collectively committed to academic excellence, honesty, and integrity. Academic integrity should remain at the core of all business practices, plans, and decision making processes.

Maintain service quality assurance processes with a core focus on educing Subject Specialists and upholding academic integrity

Specialists’ interactions with students are subject to quality assurance processes that include checking for adherence to Studiosity’s Academic Integrity policy and our Help, Not Answers policy. Our QA teams consider whether Specialists have provided support that furthers the student’s understanding of the relevant concepts through appropriate use of leading questions, examples (separate from the student’s immediate question) and explanations.

Where a Specialist has breached this policy, depending on the severity of the violation, the QA team’s initial approach will be to educate the Subject Specialist through the provision of written feedback explaining the issue with specific examples from the session transcript or submission, as well as direct instruction on how to address the issue.

If the specific case is sufficiently serious, or where the Specialist has previously received feedback on an academic integrity issue, the matter will be escalated to the relevant Senior Mentor or Quality Assurance Manager for further action as warranted. This may include a formal warning, a suspension of service access while completing retraining or contract termination.

Maintain academic integrity audit compliance procedures

Studiosity staff

Each team within Studiosity will develop and apply clearly defined business processes that describe their specific procedures for ensuring our academic integrity standards are upheld.

Academic Services Quality Assurance (QA) Teams

The Academic Services team is responsible for the implementation and maintenance of QA processes that aim to support and enforce practices that are in compliance with Studiosity’s academic integrity standards. Furthermore, the Academic Services team is responsible for maintaining the sufficient and ongoing training and education of the QA Team.

Subject Specialists

The Academic Services QA Teams are responsible for the day-to-day reviewing of active Subject Specialists and the sessions/submissions that they work on. The QA Teams maintains up to date records of interactions with Subject Specialists, and report breaches directly to Academic Services as and when required.
BREACHES AND CONSEQUENCES

Breaches of Academic Integrity by Studiosity staff and Subject Specialists may include:

Providing answers to students
A Subject Specialist will be deemed to have breached the policy if:
- they provide direct answers or worked solutions (either in part or in full) to problems;
- they supply material, either of their own or from other sources, that directly answers the student’s question;
- they undertake research on the student’s behalf and provide resources, in contravention of our Help, Not Answers policy;
- they offer their own ideas or interpretation of a text;
- they edit, correct or draft material for the student (see also Proofreading below).

Proofreading
Proofreading is defined as ‘the process of finding and correcting mistakes in text’ (Proofreading, 2020). Subject Specialists are prohibited from proofreading in any and all interactions with students. A Subject Specialist will be deemed to have breached the policy if they:
- highlight every instance of a particular error in a student’s work;
- directly edit/change a student’s writing, rather than suggesting ways of improving the writing; or
- offer corrections without providing suitable explanations and information that will help the student understand the issue and how to correct it themselves in future assignments.

Collusion
In the context of student - Subject Specialist interactions, collusion includes any attempt to collaborate on the student’s work beyond what allowed under Studiosity’s policies. This may include:
- sharing of email addresses;
- the Specialist agreeing to contact the student outside the Studiosity platform; or
- any discussion that entails the Specialist providing any direct contribution to the student’s work; or
- breaches of the “help, not answers” policy where initiated by either party.

Discussing or predicting grades/marks
Subject Specialists are prohibited from engaging in any discussions with students that amount to the prediction or discussion of potential grades for the assignment in question.

Failing to correctly attribute sources
Studiosity staff and Subject Specialists are required to acknowledge/attribute information used internally, externally, and with students, to its original source.

Failing to seek proper permission for use of material including students’ work
Failure to obtain written permission for use of materials, including students’ work for sales, marketing or demonstrative purposes, will mean that the material cannot be used for its intended purpose and that substitute material for which permissions have already been obtained will need to be used.

Providing feedback and/or advice on content in Writing Feedback submissions
In accordance with our Help, Not Answers policy, Subject Specialists are not permitted to provide students with feedback or opinions on the content of their written work. For example, while Subject Specialists can comment on the strength or development of an argument (under structural feedback), they may not comment on the validity or accuracy of an argument, or provide information that can be used to support or refute the argument being made.

In line with Studiosity’s educative approach to promoting academic integrity, the initial response to a breach of the policy will be to provide the staff member or Subject Specialist with either verbal or written feedback on the issue, including specific guidance on how to avoid future breaches. Repeated instances or cases where the violation is considered sufficiently serious may warrant a formal written warning or further escalation including suspension from access to the service during a period of retraining, or contract termination (for Subject Specialists). Serious or repeated breaches by staff members will be treated in accordance with relevant local employment law.

This policy provides a clear statement of Studiosity’s unambiguous stance on academic integrity. It offers a framework for all stakeholders to pursue the highest possible standards in this crucial element of academic success, in particular, in developing students as ethical researchers and writers.
