

Steen Siale, 1st year Bachelor of Applied Science student,
University of Tasmania

Hi Everyone,

My name is Steen and I'm from Solomon Islands. This is my first year at UTAS and I have undertaken Bachelor of Applied Science, majoring in Maritime technology management.

It's been an exciting and challenging experience to be able to study online. This online learning system has taught me a lot in terms of time management and to work diligently. As an international student, the most challenging experience was to communicate and work corporately with different students, which are on campus. I have encountered challenges such as working with different students in projects and in lab practical. Hence, the fact that I am not physically present to actually get hands on the projects and lab practical was very difficult to fully comprehend the different concepts. Despite the challenges encountered, it was a privilege to work with the Coordinators and the students to acquire the required learning objectives.
